Camp Altitude is a two-week summer camp experience for boys and girls with social cognitive challenges (Asperger's, PDD-NOS, ADHD, High Functioning Autism, LD and NVLD) who are entering 6th through 11th grades.

Camp Altitude creates opportunities for our campers to increase self confidence and boost self esteem through practice, support, encouragement and positive experiences, during participation in traditional camp activities including arts and crafts, swimming, sports, rhythm and movement, electives. We provide our campers with a safe and structured environment so that they can feel comfortable enough to be themselves — and at the same time secure enough to take risks that propel them towards achieving their potential at camp, home and in their communities.

Campers are children who are excited about coming to camp and experiencing a traditional summer camp. The camper would have some insight into their strengths and challenges, willingness to grow, and have social intent toward their peers. Our campers are responsive to behavioral interventions and do not exhibit significant behavioral challenges.

Altitude campers function comfortably within a ratio of 3 campers to 1 adult staff member. Our highly trained professional staff coupled with energetic college and postgraduate aged counselors will provide an experience that integrates your camper's unique needs.
